Enter the Swamp

There are places where the boundary between the real and the imagined begins to disappear. In Rue, Mandy Conner invites us into one of those places: the Louisiana swamp, where family secrets, ancient folklore, and the fears we carry inside ourselves can become difficult to separate. At the center of the story is sixteen-year-old Josephine, struggling with anxiety after the mysterious disappearance of her parents. Rather than leave the only home she knows, Jo turns toward the strange and sometimes frightening inhabitants of the swamp in search of answers. Along the way, she encounters figures drawn from Louisiana folklore, including the fue follet and the legendary loup-garou.

But Rue is more than a ghost story. It asks what happens when grief and fear take hold of us—and whether facing what frightens us might be the first step toward healing. The swamp becomes both a literal landscape and a metaphorical one: mysterious, dangerous, beautiful, and filled with things we do not yet understand.

Conner has described the play as a “love letter” to her daughters, connecting Josephine’s journey through anxiety with the universal experience of growing up and learning to confront the things that scare us.

From Sleepy Hollow to the Louisiana Swamp

Washington Irving’s The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, first published in 1820, has haunted audiences for more than two centuries. At the TTC we celebrate traditional stories and legends of literature. We especially appreciate how legends travel. They change as they move from one landscape, generation, and storyteller to the next. This production embraces that tradition by carrying Irving’s story from the misty woods of New York into the mysterious swamps of Louisiana. Here, the familiar bones of the story encounter a new landscape, a new culture, and a new sense of what might be lurking just beyond the edge of the light.

We are proud to have a TTC alumnus with us for this process. Sumaya is a graduate of the TTC (Class of 2024). Hiring a former student to reimagine this classic reflects our belief that theatrical storytelling is a living conversation: artists learn, grow, and return to their communities with new stories to tell. This production gives a new generation of artists the opportunity to put their own stamp on an enduring American legend. Sumaya Zeidat is a fourth year Playwriting & Dramaturgy student at University of Houston and an alumni of the TTC. Her background in devised theatre set the foundation for her passion for new work and collaborative art. Working in Houston as a professional artist has brought Sumaya much fulfillment, joy, and pride.

Take Your Final Bow, Belyn

We've loved watching every moment of your story.

From your very first entrance to your final high school curtain call, we have loved watching you find your voice, tell stories, take chances, and become the performer and person you are today. Keep chasing the roles that scare you, the stories that move you, and the stages that feel like home.

We'll always be in the audience, cheering the loudest.

We love you endlessly.

Class of 2027 • Tompkins Theatre Company

17 years old. Countless rehearsals. Hundreds of hours backstage. Thousands of lines. One very proud family. You've made us laugh, cry, cheer, and occasionally wonder if you were living at the theater. Enjoy your final season. We are so proud of everything you've accomplished and even more excited for what comes next.

Standing ovation, Morgy. You've earned it.

Love, Mom & Dad

Hazel,

We are so proud of the beautiful person you've become. As you begin this next chapter, always believe in yourself, follow your dreams, and know that we'll be cheering you on every step of the way.

We love you always!

Art has always lived inside you. It shines through your grace, your lightness, your joy, and most of all, in the gentle sensitivity with which you experience and embrace the world around you.

Watching you perform on stage today brings back that same little girl we have always cherished, now reaching for even greater dreams.

We love you deeply, Sofia.
